

THE RHYTHM OF THE WEST

A Biohistory of the Modern Era AD 1600 to the Present

Michael A. Woodley, Aurelio J. Figueredo, Matthew A. Sarraf, Steven C. Hertler, Heitor B. F. Fernandes, Mateo Peñaherrera-Aguirre

JSPES Monograph Volume 37, 2017

203pp., $48.00 + postage ISBN 978-1-878465-49-8

Is Western civilization generally progressing or declining? Optimists point to high levels of wealth and subjective well-being and low levels of poverty, crime, and mortality, alongside over a century of mostly sustained economic and cognitive growth — the latter reflected in the threepoint per decade increase in IQ test performance, known as the Flynn effect. But contemporary research indicates that in recent decades the Flynn effect has faltered and gone into reverse.

The Rhythm of the West offers a rigorous and empirically robust theory to elucidate this adverse turn of fortune as well as the progress foregoing and attending it. Prior to the British industrial revolution and the end of the preceding Little Ice Age, life throughout Western Europe was brutally difficult. Harsh environments with scarce resources forced European populations to compete with one another for survival and expansion. Unpleasant as this was, it laid the groundwork for the peaceful and prosperous industrial (and post-industrial) age that was to follow, the relaxed existential conditions of which enabled the development of specialized economic niches and complementary specialized cognitive skills, with the Flynn effect emerging as a consequence of the cultivation of the latter. Intergroup competition favored or selected for those populations highest in general intelligence (g) and intra-group altruism.

These traits are in fact foundational to advanced civilizations, as they promote innovation in all fields of intellectual endeavor. The implications for the future of the West are dire, making the authors' findings all the more important and worthy of serious attention.

COUNCIL FOR SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC STUDIES

P.O. Box 34143, Washington, D.C. 20043

(202) 266-9908; F (202) 371-1523 Email: socecon@aol.com

THE JOURNAL OF SOCIAL, POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC STUDIES

Fall & Winter 2020

Vol. 45 Nos. 3&4

The Journal of Social, Political and Economic Studies

Fall & Winter 2020

Vol. 45 Nos. 3&4

Commemorating Professor Dwight D. Murphey's three decades of service as Associate Editor of
The Journal of Social, Political and Economic Studies

The Price of the U.S. Entanglements in China's Domestic Affairs:
The Chinese Civil War as a Case Study
ben haj Rehaiem Jalel

IQ and Governance Contribute to Entrepreneurship, But in Different Ways
Siti Shazwani Ahmad Suhaimi, Nik Ahmad Sufian Burhan,
Mohamad Fazli Sabri, Abdul Razak Abdul Rahman, Saifuzzaman Ibrahim

In Pursuit of Integration: Is South Asia Unfit for Regionalism?
Srimal Fernando and Pankaj Jha

Limitations of the Export-Raw Material Model of the Russian Economy in the Context of Global Technological Development
Maria Klimovich

Nuclear Resistance Movements
Shivani Yadav

BOOK REVIEW ARTICLES
The Attack on American Memory
Dwight D. Murphey

Justice Neil Gorsuch and the Constitution
Dwight D. Murphey

Book Reviews

The Council for Social and Economic Studies